The Conference

It has been 16 years since the Council of Europe set up the Programme “Building a Europe for and with Children” to enhance its commitment to children and their human rights. Since 2009, this work has been guided by three consecutive Strategies for the Rights of the Child: the Stockholm Strategy (2009-2011), the Monaco Strategy (2012-2015) and the Sofia Strategy (2016-2021). The new Strategy for the Rights of the Child (2022-2027), adopted by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe on 23 February 2022, was, for the first time, formally prepared by the Steering Committee for the Rights of the Child (CDENF) which will also oversee the Strategy’s implementation over the next six years.

The High-Level Conference, “Beyond the horizon: a new era for the rights of the child”, will launch the “Rome Strategy” (2022-2027) as a European instrument guiding the Council of Europe and its member states in delivering the following six strategic objectives for protecting and promoting the rights of the child:

1. Freedom from violence for all children
2. Equal opportunities and social inclusion for all children
3. Access to and safe use of technologies for all children
4. Child-friendly justice for all children
5. Giving a voice to every child
6. Children’s rights in crisis and emergency situations

The Conference is organised in the framework of and hosted by the Italian Presidency of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe, represented by the Department for Family Policies of the Presidency of the Council of Ministers. The Conference will provide an opportunity for high-level representatives of member states and other international organisations to express their commitment to the Strategy and present their visions for the implementation of the rights of the child over the next years and exchange with outstanding international experts in this field, as well as a number of young delegates from different Council of Europe member states.

The Conference will propose a number of thematic sessions where participants can “dive into” some of the recent developments and significant challenges impacting the rights of the child and jointly elaborate guidance for governmental and intergovernmental action to be taken over the next years; participants will also find opportunities for networking and more personal exchanges at side events and on the margins of the Conference.

In such situations, children are exposed to all forms of violence, including grave violations of their human rights, and many existing services, such as child protection mechanisms, helplines and other, are paralysed and are no longer able to function. Furthermore, crisis situations and emergencies may result in spikes of migration, refugee and forced displacement, which expose children to higher risks and further violations of their rights. The Strategy intends to keep a certain level of flexibility towards any unforeseen events so that new and emerging challenges can also be addressed. The past two years, and especially the situation today have reminded us all that Europe is not immune to crises or emergencies. The COVID-19 pandemic placed almost every child in Europe in a public health crisis, and many of them in an economic one. Children living in conflict areas are also a vivid and dramatic stark reality in the Council of Europe. The conflict in Ukraine has already inflicted a profound impact on children’s right to life, safety and access to their basic human rights. Europe is witnessing the killing and maiming of children, abduction, sexual violence, attacks on schools and hospitals and the denial of humanitarian access and children, in particular boys, being drawn into the conflict. These are all serious risks and violations of the human rights of children that need to be addressed. Objective This session will seek to identify the key risks and main violations of rights that children are currently facing, both in war-torn Ukraine and when fleeing from it, and point to ways to document, report and address them in order to uphold children’s basic human rights. The session will explore how the Council of Europe, within its mandate, can support its member States in maintaining a functioning and responsive child protection system, including protection from specific risks arising from armed conflicts. Moderator: NN. Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Mr Jeroen Schokkenbroek, Director of Anti-discrimination, DGII, Council of Europe - Mr Aaron Greenberg, Regional Child Protection Adviser, UNICEF Europe and Central Asia (via livestream) - Mr Zoltán Lőrinczi, Secretary of State for International and Carpathian Basin Affairs, Hungary - Ms Elena Botezatu, La Strada Moldova, Republic of Moldova - Mr Artur Degteariov, Member of the Lanzarote Committee

16:00-17:30	Theme I: Strengthening child protection systems in the face of crisis situations
	The rights of the child are at greater risk during crisis and emergency situations. The impact on children of the Covid-19 pandemic, the climate change emergency and the migration crisis illustrate well the need to reinforce prevention, protection and response systems. This session will look at measures taken by States to address some of the specific challenges emerging from current crisis situations and will identify key steps needed to strengthen child protection systems and reduce children’s vulnerability in crisis or emergency situations. It will also address the recognition and protection of children’s right to a healthy environment.
	“Deep dive conversations” (2 parallel sessions):
Room: Leptis Magna Interpretation: EN/FR	A: Ensuring children’s access to quality mental health services Focus Between 2020 and 2022, public health measures to contain Covid 19 have turned children’s lives upside down. Lockdowns, isolation, loss of lives and the need to accept uncertainty have impacted children’s wellbeing and mental health. Further reflection on how to promote children’s well-being and mental health, including in crisis situations, has become critical. What can we learn from the recent pandemic in terms of children’s mental health needs? Which measures have proven effective in promoting children’s well-being during crisis situations? How can we ensure that children’s voices are duly taken into account in mental health responses? Objectives Starting from the lessons learnt, this “dive in” session aims to identify national good practices in ensuring accessibility, continuity and quality mental health services for children and to explore the intersectoral approach to mental health prevention and promotion. Moderator: Ms Theoni Koufonikolakou, Chairperson of the European Network of Ombudspersons for Children (ENOC) Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Mr Dainius Pūras, Former UN Special Rapporteur on the Right to Health (2014 - 2020) - Mr David Anthony, Chief of Strategic Planning, Convening and Emerging Issues for the UNICEF Office of Research-Innocenti - Mr Mark Bale, Member of the Bureau of the Steering Committee for Human Rights in the fields of Biomedicine and Health (CDBIO)

B: Recognising and enforcing children’s environmental rights

Focus

No group is more vulnerable to environmental harm than children. Air pollution, water pollution and exposure to toxic substances, together with other types of environmental harm, every year, cause 1.5 million children’s deaths under the age of 5 and contribute to disease, disability and early mortality. Nearly one billion children world-wide live in areas exposed to high risk of impact from climate change, which could kill many of them or force them to leave their homes (UNICEF). A lack of effective action to tackle climate change therefore constitutes a violation of children’s rights. The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child and other UN and European treaties contain provisions that apply to this context. While further work is developed at international level in this field, it is critical to involve and empower children so that they can be part of the solution and make States accountable.

Objectives

This “deep dive conversation” will explore existing standards and some of the cases related to children rights and the right to a safe environment brought before international bodies. It will also discuss work conducted at international and national levels toward the recognition and effective protection of the human right to a safe, clean, healthy and sustainable environment, particularly for children.

Without interpretation	A. Side event organised by the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights (FRA) to launch the revised Handbook on European law relating to the rights of the child Focus The European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights (FRA) together with the Council of Europe, have produced a second edition of the Handbook on European law relating to the rights of the child. The Handbook aims to increase knowledge on the legal standards that protect and promote children’s rights in Europe. Since the first edition in 2015, there have been a number of legislative changes, as well as important case law relevant to the rights of the child. For example, the EU has for the first time legislated on procedural safeguards for children who are suspects or accused persons in criminal proceedings. The Court of Justice of the EU (CJEU) has clarified legal questions regarding issues such as return of third country national children. The European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) has delivered a number of important judgments, notably in the areas of prevention of violence against children and the protection of migrant children. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The event will be in English without simultaneous interpretation. Objectives The objective of the side event is to present the second edition of the Handbook and to make participants aware of some of the key legislative and case law developments since the first edition in 2015. Interventions will focus on specific areas of the Handbook, such as protection of unaccompanied migrant children, protection from child abuse, both online and in institutions, and social inclusion. Hard copies of the Handbook will be made available during the event. Moderator: Ms Astrid Podsiadlowski, Project Manager, Rights of the Child, FRA (tbc) Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Mr Michael O’Flaherty, Director of the Fundamental Rights Agency of the European Union (FRA) - Ms Katrin Uerpmann, Secretary of the Steering Committee for the Rights of the Child (CDENF), former senior lawyer of the Registry of the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR), Council of Europe - Mr Benoit van Keirsbilck, Member of the UN Committee for the Rights of the Child (UNCRC), European focal point, Defence for Children International, Belgium - Mr Joseph Moyersoan, Focal point on External relations and International Cooperation, Technical Secretariat - Commission on Inter-Country Adoption, Presidenza del Consiglio dei Ministri

9:00-10:30	Theme II: Empowering children and overcoming obstacles to their right to participate
	The participation of children in decision-making as a standard practice is already reflected in the commitments of many European leaders, international and European organisations, national authorities, experts, and professionals who have witnessed the substantial benefits of listening and acting upon children’s opinions, expertise and views. However, longstanding practices, social attitudes and political and economic barriers still prevent children from expressing their views in matters that affect them. What is needed to create a more favourable context and provide more opportunities for children to participate? How can we support their activism? What are the particular challenges and risks faced by children involved in activism and standing up for human rights?
	“Deep dive conversations” (2 parallel sessions):
Room: Leptis Magna Interpretation: EN/FR	A: Promoting legal clinics as a means of strengthening children’s access to justice Focus Legal clinics come in many forms. Although it is not easy to define the concept in a comprehensive way, this session will focus on a better approach to what they are and how they contribute to building child-friendly justice systems. Legal clinics are offered by different organisations, namely universities which aim to organise such clinics so that law students, supervised by law professors or practicing lawyers, can further their training, by providing legal services to justice seekers, and NGO’s that set up such clinics in order to offer justice seekers direct access to justice and corresponding quality social-legal support. Objectives The "dive in session" aims to present examples of legal clinics in different forms. The focus will be on national inspiring practices that contribute to improving access to legal aid and representation of children in justice systems. It will also examine how this model can be promoted more widely across Europe. A deeper understanding will be sought on how these clinics can serve child-friendly justice and engage children in a sustainable way. Moderator: Mr Seamus S. This activism has sometimes come at a high price, with children being victims of physical attacks, harassment, hate speech and social exclusion. What are the risks and obstacles faced by child human rights defenders including in the design of policies that affect them? What measures have proven effective in ensuring that these children stay protected from harm when they express themselves? Objectives Building upon the experience of child activists and defenders of human rights, this “dive-in session” will explore the main challenges children have had to face when defending human rights, the risks they have been exposed to and the measures that must be taken to ensure their right to express themselves, build resilience, prevent and respond to harm. Moderator: Ms Jana Hainsworth, Secretary General of Eurochild Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Mr Michel Forst, Former UN Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights defenders - Mr Alex Conte, Executive Director, Child Rights Connect - Mr Konstantinos Papachristou, Member of the Youth Board of the State of Youth community founded by Kid’s Rights (NL), founder of Teens4greece and board member of the Learning4wellbeing Foundation - Ms Selin Sayek Böke, Chairperson of the Committee on Social Affairs, Health and Sustainable Development of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe

11:00-12:30	Theme III: Upholding the rights of the child in a fast-evolving technological world
	Digital technologies offer unprecedented opportunities for children’s well-being and development, enhancing their enjoyment of human rights. However, the complex and constantly evolving nature of the digital environment also presents many risks to children’s safety and creates new challenges for the protection of children’s right to privacy, freedom from violence and exploitation, among others. How can policies and laws effectively protect children in their use of digital technologies, for example against online sexual exploitation and sexual abuse? Which opportunities are offered by artificial intelligence for the prevention, investigation and prosecution of online child sexual abuse and exploitation?
	“Deep dive conversations” (2 parallel sessions):
Room: Leptis Magna Interpretation: EN/FR	A. Protecting children from online sexual exploitation and sexual abuse Focus Online child sexual exploitation and sexual abuse continues to increase, with an estimated nearly 22 million reports in 2020, leaving almost as many crimes unpunished and their victims without the needed support. These new and rapidly emerging trends and challenges related to the increased use of information and communication technologies (ICTs) must be addressed in the framework of international human rights, including comprehensive legal frameworks, education, international cooperation and victim support. The Committee of the Parties to the Council of Europe Convention on the protection of children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse (Lanzarote Committee) has examined and addressed specific challenges related to ICTs and the protection of children against some of the worse forms of violence. Objectives This “deep-dive conversation” will first focus on an overview of the increase in online child sexual exploitation and sexual abuse and then on the results of the 2nd thematic monitoring round of the Lanzarote Committee on the “Protection of children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse which are facilitated by information and communication technologies (ICTs)”, in particular on how to “Address the challenges raised by child self-generated sexual images and/or videos”. Moderator: Mr Philip Jaffé, Member of the UN Committee for the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Ms Maria José Castello-Branco, Vice-Chairperson of the Lanzarote Committee - Ms Susie Hargreaves, CEO, Internet Watch Foundation (UK) - Mr Ernesto Caffo, President of SOS Telefono Azzurro Onlus (Italy)

AI technologies are embedded in toys, videogames, and adaptive learning software. Algorithms suggest which videos children should watch, which educational path they should pursue and with whom to be friends. Even when AI systems are not used directly by children, they significantly impact their lives and rights. The relation between AI and children’s rights therefore appears to be complex and multidimensional. On the one hand, how do AI systems endanger children’s rights, putting their lives at risk? And on the other, how can AI technologies foster children’s rights, enhancing their well-being? Objectives This “dive in session” aims to explore the potential positive and negative impact of AI systems on children’s rights in order to find solutions and maximize opportunities while minimising risks. In addition, it intends to stimulate the discussion around the provision of a child rights-based framework for AI that outlines rights and duties for relevant stakeholders. Moderator: Ms Vasiliki Charisi, Research Scientist, Joint Research Centre, Centre for Advanced Studies, European Commission Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Ms Denise Amram, Assistant professor, LIDER Lab, DIRPOLIS Institute & EMbeDS Department of Excellence, Scuola Superiore Sant’Anna (Italy) - Ms Leanda Barrington-Leach, Director of International Advocacy & Head of European Affairs, 5Rights Foundation - Ms Alisha Arora, UNICEF Youth Ambassador - Mr Alain Berthoz, Neurophysiologist, Honorary Professor, Academy of Sciences, Academy of Technologies (France)

14:30-16:00	Theme IV: National strategies for the prevention of violence against children
	The Council of Europe Policy Guidelines on Integrated National Strategies for the Protection of Children from Violence have outlined a model approach for the adoption, implementation and monitoring of integrated national strategies for the protection of children from violence. More than 10 years later, have national strategies adopted this approach by combining awareness-raising, prevention, early detection, protection and recovery, and promoting inter-agency co-operation? Which are the key strategies and best practices envisaged in Council of Europe member states? How have national legal and policy frameworks responded to the increase of various forms of violence against children during the Covid-19 pandemic? What are the remaining blind spots to be addressed?
	“Deep dive conversations” (2 parallel sessions):
Room: Leptis Magna Interpretation: EN/FR	A: Strengthening inter-agency collaboration Focus Specific questions to be addressed are: How can national strategies and legal frameworks coordinate an integrated approach to violence against children and more systematic collaboration between the different public authorities and agencies involved? What are the new approaches to data collection and information-sharing? Which cross-cutting approaches can be further promoted through co-operation projects? Objective This “dive-in session” will share best national practices regarding coordination of services, inter-agency collaboration and data collection mechanisms to handle and prevent violence against children more effectively, including in the context of reporting systems for professionals and in crisis situations such as the ongoing pandemic.
